Understanding the Data

One of the best "snapshots" of property data is seeing where prices have been historically and currently at.

The data used to determine the yearly rise or fall of prices is the Price Per Square Foot. For example, using the "Price Per Sq. Ft." in 2025 a 2,000 sq. ft. home would sell on average for $384,000. (2,000 sq. ft. x $192 = $384,000.)

2026 Value Calculation
Sq.Ft.	Price
1000	$180,000
1200	$216,000
1400	$252,000
1600	$288,000
1800	$324,000
2000	$360,000
2500	$450,000
3000	$540,000
3500	$630,000
4000	$720,000

2021 Value Calculation
Sq.Ft.	Price
1000	$144,000
1200	$172,800
1400	$201,600
1600	$230,400
1800	$259,200
2000	$288,000
2500	$360,000
3000	$432,000
3500	$504,000
4000	$576,000

By using the Price Per Square Foot, you can apply the 2025 average and apply it to the square footage of a residence to give you an overall average for your area. It is important to understand that this is just an average to determine an overall picture of where prices are at compared to prior years.

A property's PRICE PER SQUARE FOOT may be higher or lower determined by location, condition, amenities and other criteria.
